Dating back to 1841, this charming stone built detached former school offers a rare blend of character, space and setting, with open views across the countryside towards the Mendip Hills. Set in the heart of the sought after village of Kenn, the property enjoys a peaceful rural feel while remaining exceptionally well connected. Inside, the flexible living accommodation is full of period charm, with well proportioned rooms that adapt easily to modern family life. Upstairs are three comfortable bedrooms, providing calm and characterful spaces, while outside a separate stone building in the garden is currently used as a home office but would be equally well suited as a garden room, studio or games room. Kenn is a picturesque village known for its strong community and countryside walks, making it ideal for those who enjoy village living without feeling isolated. Despite its rural charm, the property is conveniently located close to Clevedon's vibrant seafront, independent shops and cafés, while Yatton train station provides excellent commuter links to Bristol, Exeter and beyond. This is a home that offers heritage, flexibility and a relaxed West Country lifestyle in an enviable setting.
