PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

The Old Portsmouth GAOL – “Kingston Prison was originally built in 1877 as a Victorian radial design prison. Kingston has had a varied history. At one point the building was used for a boys' borstal, and then became a police station during World War II. In 1965 capital punishment for murder was abolished in Britain and, as a result, Kingston began exclusively to hold inmates serving life sentences. Kingston became the only prison in England and Wales to have a unit exclusively for elderly male prisoners serving life sentences. On 10 January 2013 it was announced that Kingston Prison would close” This historical Grade II listed building the heart of Portsmouth, converted into luxury apartments, completed in 2021.
