Summary

A charming Cotswold stone cottage tucked away within the sought-after village of Preston, offering beautiful character, generous gardens and open countryside views just minutes from Cirencester.

Inside, exposed stone walls, original beams and a wood burning stove create a wonderfully atmospheric living space, while the kitchen and bathroom have both been thoughtfully updated to blend modern convenience with the home's heritage charm. Upstairs, two bedrooms enjoy lovely outlooks over the garden and surrounding countryside.

Outside, the property continues to shine. Generous gardens stretch both to the front and rear, with the rear garden opening out towards uninterrupted views across open fields beyond.

Homes in Preston rarely come to market, particularly those enjoying views such as these. A quintessential Cotswold cottage in a peaceful village setting, just minutes from Cirencester.

Step inside

The welcoming entrance hall provides space for coats and shoes, along with a useful storage cupboard and stairs rising to the first floor.

The living room is a real highlight of the property and immediately showcases the character of the home. Exposed Cotswold stone walls, ceiling beams and a beautiful fireplace housing a wood burning stove combine to create a wonderfully cosy and inviting space, while a window seat adds another charming feature.

To the rear of the cottage, the kitchen has been tastefully refitted with a range of storage and wooden work surfaces, complemented by a classic Belfast-style sink. A stable door opens directly out to the garden, perfectly framing the countryside views beyond and allowing the outside to feel connected to the home.

The bathroom has also been updated in a heritage style, featuring a claw-foot bath with shower over, along with a traditional style wash hand basin and WC.

Upstairs, the first floor offers two bedrooms. The principal bedroom continues the character theme with exposed Cotswold stone within the feature fireplace and enjoys a lovely outlook over the front garden. The second bedroom also benefits from views across the front and includes useful built-in storage.

Step outside

The property is approached through a generous front garden, with a pathway leading to the front door and off-road parking available for at least two vehicles.

To the rear lies a particularly attractive garden which enjoys a wonderful open outlook across the surrounding fields. Predominantly laid to lawn, the space is interspersed with established planting and a charming Cotswold stone wall which helps create distinct seating areas within the garden. A useful stone outbuilding provides additional storage, while the open boundary to the rear allows the garden to fully embrace the uninterrupted countryside views beyond.

The result is a garden that feels both private and wonderfully connected to the surrounding landscape.

Area insights

Preston is a charming village surrounded by open countryside yet located just a few minutes from the vibrant market town of Cirencester. The village itself has a strong sense of community centred around the village hall and church, while the surrounding network of footpaths and rural lanes make it an ideal setting for walking and enjoying the Cotswold landscape.

Cirencester provides an excellent range of everyday amenities including independent shops, cafés, restaurants, supermarkets, healthcare facilities and leisure options.

For those commuting or travelling further afield, excellent road links connect easily to the wider region, while nearby Kemble Station offers direct rail services to London Paddington.

The result is a location that combines peaceful village living with the convenience of town amenities just moments away.
